

NYSCC Program Health & Safety Notice

Updated March 10, 2020

Regarding the current Coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak:

The health and safety of all our stakeholders—attendees, sponsors, members and staff—is the Number One Priority for NYSCC and its Programs. We are actively monitoring recommendations from local, state, federal and international agencies to plan for a safe and healthy program experience.

Under this advisement and guidance, we are regretfully postponing the Microbiome Program. As the COVID-19 is an evolving situation, the Microbiome Program and future programs will follow the current recommendations of government and health agencies regarding operations, precautions, and hygiene measures as they take place. We are considering alternative dates in June 2020 for the Microbiome Program and we will update all attendees and speakers accordingly.

We are offering to credit all registration fees to either the next Microbiome Event or an upcoming NYSCC educational program event of your choice. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused, but trust you understand that the safety of everyone is very important to us, as well as the offering of the best event experience possible.

Visit the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) website that is continuously updated for detailed information on prevention and treatment, risk assessment and travel restrictions:

<https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/about/index.html>

Here is another informative resource: <https://coronavirus-disasterresponse.hub.arcgis.com>

If you have any questions regarding your participation at this event, please do not hesitate to contact us at program@nyscc.org (Maria Mo, NYSCC Program Chair)

Sincerely,

Giorgino D. Macalino
Chairman of the Board
New York Society of Cosmetic Chemists 2020